Follow the instructions to complete the activity.

Groups of stars that form patterns in the night sky are known as constellations. Constellations can be people, animals, or objects. Look at the stars in the night sky or find a star chart online. Based on what you see, create your own zodiac constellation by imagining a picture created by a grouping of stars. Using the space below, draw the stars that make up your constellation using dots. Then, connect the dots and draw the person, animal, or object around the dots.

Name your constellation and write a brief description of it below.
