

Timeline Activity

Follow the instructions to complete the activity.

NAME

DATE

Number the events below in the order they would appear on the timeline. Write the number in the box beside each event.

Horace Day and Lieutenant John Frémont build the first rubber raft.

The first commercial whitewater rafting trips take place on the Snake and Salmon Rivers.

The rules for raft racing are created, then finalized when the first World Rafting Championships are held on Costa Rica's Reventazón and Pacuare Rivers.

A group tries to travel down the Snake River in the United States but fails. As technology develops, the river eventually becomes a popular place to whitewater raft.

Lee Porter helps found and lead the International Rafting Federation (IRF). The group unites rafting communities from around the world.

The World Rafting Federation (WRF), an organization that broke off from the IRF, holds its World Rafting Championships in L'Argentière-la-Bessée.

